How to Use This Report

This survey report provides an overview of Discover Denver’s work and findings in the Westwood survey area. Section 1 through Section 4 discuss the Discover Denver project in general, the Westwood survey area more specifically, and the methodology used by the project. A historic context of Westwood, discussing how the area developed from its earliest times to the present day, is found in Section 5. Section 6, Results and Recommendations, contains an analysis of prevalent building forms and architectural styles found in the survey area, and highlights concentrations of buildings that have a unique story to tell. Section 7 outlines references used to compile the historic context. A survey log containing high-level information for each building documented, as well as determinations for each related to designation at the local, state, and national levels is found in Section 8.

1. DISCOVER DENVER OVERVIEW

Project Purpose

Discover Denver is a point-in-time survey of the city’s buildings which summarizes the history of each Denver neighborhood, documents each neighborhood’s buildings, and highlights buildings with architectural, historical, or cultural significance. Led by Historic Denver, Inc. in collaboration with the City and County of Denver, this project utilizes advanced technology to accelerate the pace of historic resource survey and improve the consistency of data collection. Project methodology is based on the Multiple Property Documentation Approach and the Historic Context Statement framework developed by the National Park Service.

Denver covers a land area of 154 square miles and contains approximately 160,000 primary buildings. As of the beginning of the survey covered by this report, fewer than 11% of these buildings had been surveyed for historical and architectural significance. In 2021 the City and County of Denver received and approved more than 700 demolition permits. Consequently, Denver is at risk of losing many properties that tell the story of the city’s evolution and the people, events, ethnic and cultural heritages, and architectural styles that make Denver a special and interesting place to live.

Recent studies have shown that economic development occurs in historic districts at seven times the rate of other areas. According to The Economic Power of Heritage and Place (The Colorado Historical Foundation, 2011) and Preservation for a Changing Colorado (Colorado Preservation, Inc., 2017), investment in historic resources creates jobs, attracts businesses, and generates income from consumer visitation and spending. The purpose of Discover Denver is to identify those special places in our community where rehabilitation and investment will preserve our city's unique identity and promote quality of life for generations to come.

Project History

Discover Denver is a multi-phase project. Initial methodology was developed in 2010-2011, patterned after that used by the City of Los Angeles for its own citywide building survey, SurveyLA. The methodology was tested in Discover Denver's Pilot Phase (2012-2015) and in subsequent phases of the project the methodology has been refined as new technologies have become available and project staff have found ways to make data collection more efficient. The following table outlines the areas surveyed by Discover Denver, by project phase, and the number of properties documented in each survey area. Individual survey reports are available on the project website for each area surveyed.

Phase 4 of Discover Denver surveyed the Sunnyside, Wellshire, South City Park, and Westwood neighborhoods of the city. This report covers Westwood.

2. INTRODUCTION: WESTWOOD

Field survey efforts in the Westwood survey area began in May of 2022. All work was performed according to the general methods previously established by the project, with any changes or variations described in the Research Design and Methods section of this report. Survey of Westwood took place from May 2022 to April of 2023, with data for a total of 3479 parcels collected and uploaded to the Discover Denver database. As with prior Discover Denver surveys, trained volunteers and Discover Denver staff surveyed the bulk of the properties. Properties and districts landmarked by the City and County of Denver were excluded from the survey.

3. PROJECT AREA

The survey area consisted of buildings within the Westwood statistical neighborhood, bounded by Federal Boulevard (east), Mississippi Avenue (south), Sheridan Boulevard (west), and Alameda Avenue (north). The map below shows the boundaries for the survey area.

The interior of the Westwood neighborhood is mostly residential, with major commercial corridors along its eastern edge at S. Federal Boulevard and its northern edge at W. Alameda Avenue. A third commercial corridor, Morrison Road, cuts diagonally through the neighborhood. S. Sheridan Boulevard, also known as Colorado Highway 95, runs along the western edge of the neighborhood.

Two Denver city parks are located in the neighborhood, Westwood Park, located north of Kentucky Avenue at S. Wolff Street, and Four Winds-Cuatro Vientos Park at S. Osceola Street and W. Nevada Place. Weir Gulch winds through the northwestern quarter of the neighborhood, and a multi-use path runs along much of the gulch. Two utility easements provide additional open space in the neighborhood. One, owned by Xcel, cuts southeasterly from the intersection of W. Kentucky Avenue and S. Perry Street to the intersection of W. Tennessee Avenue and S. Newton Street. Multiple tall transmission towers run through the center of this wide, open space. A multi-use path runs through the easement. A second easement property, owned by the City and County of Denver, is bounded by W. Ford Place, W. Tennessee Avenue, S. Irving Street, and S. King Street.

Much of Westwood's development occurred prior to annexation by Denver in 1947 when there was no zoning code and building permits were not required. Due to this history, the neighborhood lacks a consistent urban pattern. Most streets in the neighborhood follow a grid system, with the exception of an area several blocks in size on the western edge of the neighborhood where streets follow a curvilinear path. The grid is interrupted where streets run into Morrison Road, Weir Gulch, or the utility easements, making travel through the neighborhood somewhat challenging. Because most of Westwood's streets were paved after annexation by Denver in 1947, sidewalks are narrow and directly abut the streets.

4. RESEARCH DESIGN AND METHODS

Survey Objectives and Scope of Work

Discover Denver is a point-in-time survey of the city's buildings which summarizes the history of each Denver neighborhood, documents each neighborhood's buildings, and highlights buildings with architectural, historical, or cultural significance. Evaluations of individual buildings are made based on conditions found in the field at the time of survey, and, for select buildings for which historical research is performed, on resources available at the time. Physical changes occurring to a building after it is surveyed, or newly discovered information which sheds light on its historical or cultural significance, may impact future evaluations.

Using a hybrid reconnaissance-intensive approach, buildings were surveyed at one of four levels: Foundation, Descriptive, Evaluation, or Enhanced. Increasing levels of detail were collected based on a building's age, historic physical integrity, and potential for architectural, historical, or cultural significance.

- Foundation Level

All properties were surveyed at the Foundation level. At this level, electronic data regarding physical location, address, year of construction, and use was collected from the City and County of Denver.

- Descriptive Level:

All buildings thirty years of age or older, regardless of historic physical integrity, were documented in the field at the Descriptive level. One to three photographs were taken of each building, and high-level information about physical features such as architectural style, building type, and level of modification, was collected. Buildings less than thirty years of age were logged and photographed, but no additional data was collected.

- Evaluation Level:

Detailed information regarding architectural style, building type, architectural features, and setting was collected on buildings greater than thirty years of age retaining their historic physical integrity. Field evaluations were made for each of these buildings based on their potential for individual architectural significance and on whether they were located in a cluster with other buildings having potential significance. Discover Denver survey forms were generated for each of these resources and provided to the State Office of Archaeology and Historic Preservation.

- Enhanced Level:

Historical research was performed on select buildings having potential architectural, historical, or cultural significance, or that were good representations of the greater building stock of the Westwood survey area. A Discover Denver Enhanced Survey Form, based on History Colorado's Architectural Inventory Form (1403), was completed for each building surveyed at the Enhanced level. Each property was evaluated in terms of individual significance and significance as a part of a cluster of buildings having architectural, cultural, or historical significance at the national, state, and local levels.

Survey Exclusions

Buildings individually designated as historic landmarks by the City and County of Denver or those within Denver Historic Landmark Districts are excluded from survey by Discover Denver.

Project Participants

Discover Denver is a partnership between Historic Denver, Inc. and the City and County of Denver's Community Planning and Development Department. Trained community volunteers and interns played a significant role in the project, performing most of the field survey and historical research under the supervision of project staff.

File Search and Previous Survey Work

Identification of resources previously surveyed was performed in the Fall of 2021. As a result of previous survey efforts, two properties in the Westwood survey area were determined officially eligible for listing in the National or State registers by the Colorado Office of Archaeology and Historic Preservation. One of those, the original Westwood Elementary School, has been demolished. The following extant resource has been determined eligible but remains undesignated:

Year of Determination	Address	Eligibility
2015	3152-3158 W. Alameda Avenue (5DV.5241; Mexico Auto Accessories)	National Register

Currently Designated Resources

No designated historic districts exist in Westwood. The Far East Center (5DV.55312), Westwood's sole historically designated property, was listed in the Colorado State Register of Historic Properties in 2024.

Public Outreach

Initial public outreach occurred prior to beginning fieldwork. Discover Denver staff met with the city council representative for the Westwood neighborhood to discuss the survey project and to answer any questions. Staff met with the director of the Southwest Improvement Council (SWIC), a local social service organization, to discuss possible outreach strategies and upcoming work in Westwood.

Information on the project was distributed to parents through Westwood's elementary schools. Additionally, staff attended an all-school event at Castro Elementary School on Saturday, April 23, 2022 to discuss Discover Denver with neighbors.

Project staff made a presentation on Discover Denver to attendees of SWIC's senior citizen lunch program on May 25, 2022. The presentation included a game of "Westwood Bingo" to get attendees thinking about the buildings they valued in the neighborhood. Because of the large number of Spanish speaking attendees, a contract interpreter was brought in to aid with the presentation.

Discover Denver held a "Discovery Day" open house event in Westwood on June 25, 2022 at the SWIC facility. The event was promoted through social media, flyers distributed through SWIC and to local businesses, and newsletter articles.

During field survey shifts, volunteers carried flyers with information about the project for distribution to neighbors they encountered. The flyers were available in English, Spanish, and Vietnamese.

Survey Software and Database

To collect survey data, Discover Denver uses proprietary software that runs on handheld tablets. This software allows a surveyor to choose the appropriate level of survey for each resource and to take photographs with the tablet that will automatically be attached to the survey record. A web-based user interface allows Discover Denver staff to assign properties for survey, quality-check collected data, add historical information to a survey record, and generate survey forms for each property. Additionally, project staff can export survey data through the user interface for use in analysis and reporting.

Survey Fieldwork

Survey of the Westwood survey area took place from May of 2022 to April of 2023. Data for a total of 3479 parcels was uploaded to the Discover Denver database, with the bulk of the properties surveyed by trained volunteers overseen by Discover Denver staff. Unbuilt parcels were included in the database but noted as having been unbuilt at the time of survey.

Before survey work began in the Westwood survey area, the master survey database was pre-populated with data acquired from the City and County of Denver. Pre-populated data included a unique site ID number, address and legal description, geographic information, and assessor's year of construction for the primary building on each parcel. As survey data was collected in the field and historical research was performed, this information was attached to the appropriate survey record.

Properties expected to be surveyed during a given survey shift were "assigned" through the master survey database by Discover Denver staff, allowing specific addresses to appear on the handheld tablets used by the survey volunteers. Volunteers met the survey shift leader at a predefined location to receive specific instructions and a tablet with which to collect data. They then worked independently or with a partner to survey each building, with the survey shift leader available to answer questions as needed.

A minimum of three photographs of each building surveyed was taken by the surveyor. These generally consisted of one facade photograph and two oblique photographs. In some instances, such as corner parcels, four or more photographs were taken in order to maximize information collected photographically.

Following field survey, Discover Denver staff quality checked tablet entries against photographs to ensure accuracy and legibility of data. For volunteers who were new to the project or who demonstrated a lower aptitude relative to their teammates, 100% of entries were checked.

Historical Research

Historical research was performed on a select number of properties in the Westwood survey area. Properties were chosen for historical research based on their potential architectural, cultural, or historical significance, or on the ability of the resource to convey the unique history and architecture of the neighborhood. In some cases, properties were chosen based on anecdotal information provided to Discover Denver by residents of the neighborhood.

Historical research included the use of Denver assessor records to determine a chain of ownership and city directories to determine residents or businesses associated with a given property. Resources available in the Denver Public Library's Western History and Genealogy collections were used extensively. These resources included building permits, master property records, historical maps, census records, obituary indexes, and the full series of the Rocky Mountain News and the Denver Post newspapers.

Historical research was used to complete Discover Denver Enhanced survey forms and to evaluate researched properties for national, state, and local significance.

Because Westwood was not annexed until 1947, property records prior to that date do not reside with the City and County of Denver or with the Denver Public Library. While the records reside with Arapahoe County, many of the records are out for digitization and were not available for research during Discover Denver's work in Westwood. Project staff and volunteers used alternate sources and methods, in many cases, to derive a property's likely date of construction, ownership, and a list of residents.

5. HISTORICAL OVERVIEW

We acknowledge with respect that the lands now occupied by the City and County of Denver are the traditional and ancestral homelands of the Arapaho, Cheyenne, and Ute Nations. These lands were also an important site of trade for numerous other Native tribes. We recognize the Indigenous peoples as original stewards of this land and their descendants that still reside here.

Introduction

Today's Westwood is a vibrant, mostly residential neighborhood. The demographic makeup of the neighborhood is one of Denver's most diverse, including large Latino and Asian communities. Morrison Road, which cuts diagonally through Westwood, is lined with an eclectic mix of businesses, including restaurants, car repair shops, artist's workshops and galleries, and small retail stores and service businesses. Many commercial buildings along Morrison Road feature colorful murals and other artwork, highlighting the diversity of the businesses and of Westwood's residents. S. Federal Boulevard, Westwood's eastern boundary, is known unofficially as the "Little Saigon Business District" due to the many East Asian businesses found there.

Today's Westwood is quite different than early Westwood, which was a largely agricultural part of Arapahoe County prior to World War II. Morrison Road was just "the road to Morrison," which connected Denver to the town of Morrison and was a popular way for Denverites to get to the mountain parks west of the city. One of the last areas to be annexed by Denver, Westwood developed later than most of the rest of the city. Most homes date to the post-war era, though some remnants of the neighborhood's agricultural and pre-war past remain.

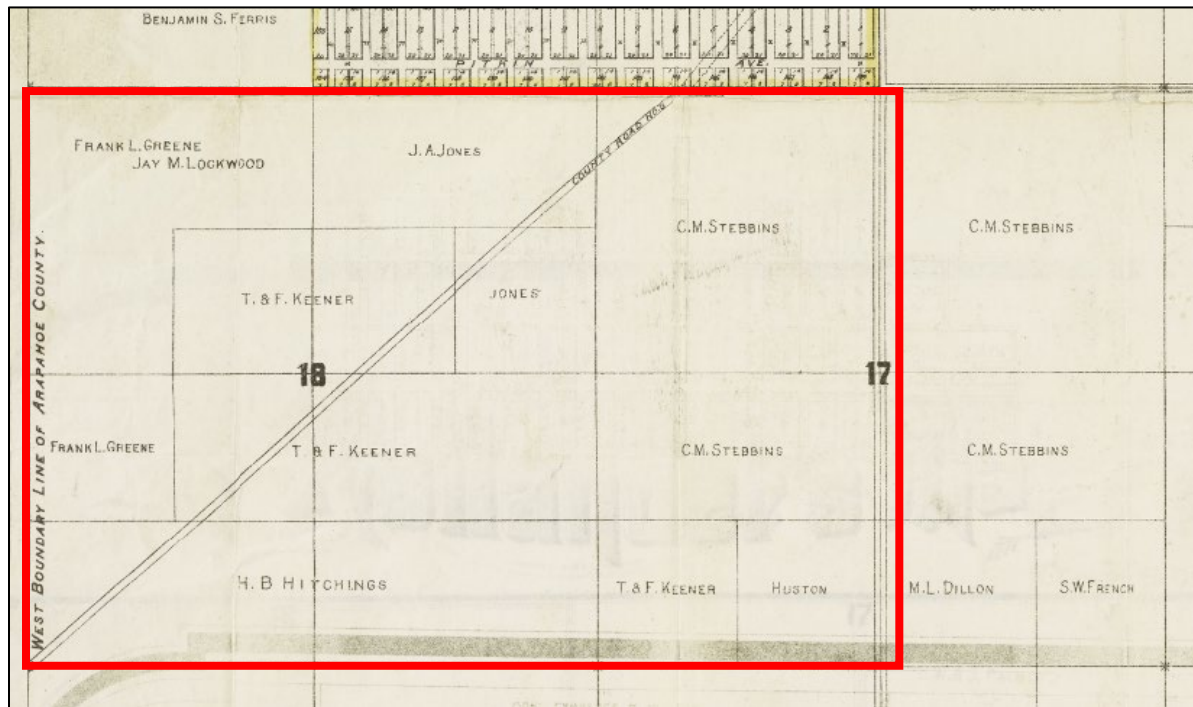

Early History: Indigenous Groups and Agriculture Use (pre-1858 to 1900)

Native Americans lived in the region for thousands of years prior to the discovery of gold near today's Denver in 1858. Westwood's proximity to the mountains and to the South Platte River likely made it an important area for indigenous groups, including the Arapaho and Ute, that called this area home.

With the discovery of gold, people flocked to the area to try their hand at prospecting or mining. Others set up businesses to "mine the miners," providing goods and services to those looking for ore. It was not long before the land that would later become Westwood was owned by individuals either hoping to use it for agricultural purposes or, alternatively, to hold it as an investment and rent it to others that would work the land.

The Westwood neighborhood encompasses Section 18 and the west half of Section 17 in Township 4 South, Range 68 West, of the Public Land Survey System (PLSS). The PLSS was a system set up by the United States government in 1785 to survey and divide land. The system is still used today in describing land that has not been “platted,” or divided up for development as would occur in the creation of an addition or subdivision.

Wealthy real estate investors initially owned much of the area. Charles M. Stebbins, who had come to Denver shortly after the city's founding to establish its first telegraph company, owned 240 acres of land in the eastern part of Westwood as early as 1885. Though he died in 1904, his estate continued to own the property for decades after his death. Frederick A. Keener, also a real estate investor, was another large land holder. Under his company "T & F Keener," he owned 240 acres in the central portion of Westwood in the 1880s.

Not all land was owned by investors. Frank L. Greene owned and ran cattle on 160 acres of land along what is today the western edge of Westwood. Before coming to Westwood, Greene and his wife Mary lived in Fairplay, where Frank worked as a stock dealer and Mary operated a hat shop. By 1882, the Greens had purchased 160 acres of land in Westwood. They would own and work that land into the 1910s.

Early Platting

While most of the Westwood neighborhood remained agricultural into the twentieth century, several early real estate investors chose to plat their land in hopes of developing it. The Irving Park Subdivision was platted in 1886 by the Bennett & Myers Investment Company, a partnership between Horace W. Bennett and Julius A. Myers. Bennett and Myers owned large land holdings across Colorado and, notably, were instrumental in founding the town of Cripple Creek.

The Garden Home addition was platted just a year later by Peter W. Breene and George R. Swallow. Breene was Lieutenant Governor of Colorado, and Swallow was a prominent Denver businessman. While local newspapers show that lots in both subdivisions changed hands often, it appears that few homes were built.

While the origins of Morrison Road are unknown, it was possibly a route traveled by indigenous groups before the founding of Denver. It consistently appears on maps dating to the late-19th century, first simply as “County Road No. 8,” and then with the notation “To Morrison.” The town of Morrison, at the western end of Morrison Road, was founded in 1872.

The Beginnings of Community, and a Way to the Mountains (1900-1930s)

The area that would become Westwood remained largely unchanged for decades. Small farms and ranches dotted the rural landscape. Land changed hands occasionally, and new families tried their hand at working the land and raising livestock.

The Garden Home Community

Around the turn of the 20th century, rural families formed an informal community known as Garden Home. They established a school for their children, first holding classes in the farmhouse of Alfred and Sigrid Anderson.¹ The Anderson home still stands at 960 S. Lowell Boulevard, just north of Mississippi Avenue. The Andersons owned a great deal of land, including what is today Garfield Lake Park just south of W. Mississippi Avenue. On early maps, Garfield Lake is called “Anderson Lake.”

The Anderson residence at 960 S. Lowell Boulevard held classes for the Garden Home School before a building could be constructed. Discover Denver photograph.

The Garden Home community raised enough money to construct a school building in 1904 at S. Lowell Boulevard and W. Ohio Avenue, the location of today’s Castro Elementary School. Initially known as Garden Home School, it was later renamed Westwood School. Additions to the school were constructed in 1925 and 1937 to accommodate the growing population.

The community established the Garden Home Grange in 1930.² A fraternal organization focused on uniting and organizing farmers and creating united rural communities, the Colorado Grange was established in 1874 and still has rural chapters throughout the state. The Garden Home Grange first met in a hall on S. Federal Boulevard at W. Alameda Avenue, but built a new, basement-level building in 1945 at 1120 S. Irving Street, just south of the Westwood neighborhood border. The Garden Home Grange building is still extant.

The Grange helped foster a sense of community, and was a place for dances, meetings, and other social activities.

Morrison Road Develops

In 1912 the city of Denver established the Denver Mountain Parks, today a system of 22 parks located west of the city. The idea was promoted with a vision of “broad automobile boulevards” connecting the parks with the city.

A February 8, 1912 Denver Daily News article showed Denver connected to the proposed mountain parks via Alameda Avenue and Morrison Road (arrow). The road is shown going through an area with “Fine Improved Farms.”

While Morrison Road did not become the “broad automobile boulevard” that was likely intended, it did become the preferred route for Denver residents and other visitors traveling to the Denver Mountain Park system. Small businesses sprung up along Morrison Road, catering to both local farmers and visitors to the parks. Creameries processed milk for local farmers, automotive repair shops aided passers-through with car trouble, and a hardware store took care of everyone.

Many early Morrison Road commercial buildings catered to the surrounding farmers and ranchers. This building, constructed in the mid-1930s, was originally a creamery. Local farmers brought milk here for processing. Discover Denver photograph.

This building at 3601 Morrison Road was built in 1928 as Edwards Hardware. Strategically placed at the head of Morrison Road, the store likely served both local customers and those on their way to the Denver Mountain Parks. The building has been modified several times, but the original form is still visible. Discover Denver photograph.

Additional Platting and the Great Depression

The mid-1920s saw a flurry of new subdivisions platted, but the real change in Westwood came during the Great Depression. According to a brief history in Westwood's 1975 neighborhood plan, the population of Westwood grew during this time because "when times became hard, cheap land was the only land people could afford.”³ Building lots in Westwood sold for $1.00 down and 50 cents a week, making them somewhat affordable for those priced out of other parts of the Denver area. Because Westwood was unincorporated, homes were constructed without zoning regulations or building permits. This is evident in much of the eastern part of Westwood, where there is a varied mix of building types.

Westwood Grows Up: The War Effort and Resulting Development Boom (1940s – 1960s)

Westwood During the War

The entire Denver region grew significantly as a result of World War II. Existing military facilities such as Lowry Field, Fort Logan, and Fitzsimons Army Hospital received a boost in federal funds as the United States prepared for war. A number of new facilities opened to help with the war effort, including the Denver Ordnance Plant, which opened in 1941 at what is today the Denver Federal Center in Lakewood. The plant was the result of a War Department contract with the Remington Arms Company to build and operate a small arms ammunition facility. The facility grew throughout the war, and by 1943 employed about 40% of Denver’s factory workers.⁴ The Denver Ordnance Plant would become the region’s largest wartime industrial facility.

The population of Westwood grew exponentially during the war, as many of the thousands of Denver Ordnance Plant workers settled there. Attracted by cheap lots and a lack of building restrictions, more than 700 parcels were developed in Westwood between 1937 and 1945, including dwellings and businesses such as groceries and roadhouses.⁵

In 1945, Westwood School was so crowded with students that the school ran in double shifts. In 1947, high school students were sent to West High School to free up space.⁶ Belmont School, now home to the Denver Indian Center, was built with Federal Works Administration funds to accommodate the population influx.⁷

With a population of nearly 8,000, Garden Home residents voted to incorporate as Westwood in 1944. The Westwood name likely came from the Westwood Telephone Exchange building on W. Kentucky Avenue and S. Federal Boulevard.⁸ The following year, residents petitioned to be annexed by the City of Denver. A lawsuit filed by a Westwood resident delayed annexation until 1947.⁹

Much of the development that occurred prior to annexation occurred without any real planning. As stated in the 1975 Westwood neighborhood plan, Westwood transitioned from an area “with a commercial strip on the outskirts of the city to a residential community...without physical planning. Things just happened.”¹⁰

One reminder of the population boom that occurred during this period is the existence of the “basement houses” that still can be found throughout the Westwood neighborhood. Often constructed with a concrete floor about six feet below grade and formed concrete walls projecting a few feet above grade, basement houses are accessed either via a covered, exterior stairwell or a covered entryway on the roof. Inside the home, the floor plan was similar to other modest houses of the era. Because these were often built with the hope of later enlarging the home by adding another story above ground, the basement house is also commonly referred to as a “hope house.”

Post-War Development in a Housing Shortage

In the years after the war, Denver faced a severe housing shortage. Servicemen and factory workers who had passed through or worked temporarily in Denver found it a place they would like to settle and raise a family, but housing was scarce. In Westwood, much of the remaining farmland was platted and developed between 1945 and 1955.

Much of this newly-platted land was filled with Minimal Traditional homes, referred to by Virginia McAlester in A Field Guide to American Houses as “the little house that could ... the house that could be built quickly to accommodate millions of relocating World War II production-plant workers (1941-1945); and the house that could be built rapidly during the late 1940s in large post-World War II developments.”¹¹

By the 1950s, Minimal Traditional homes were being replaced with Transitional Ranch homes, and later Ranch houses. This transition is seen in the southern and western areas of Westwood, where rows of homes, with repeating roof configurations, window placement, and floorplans, line the streets. In a small area in the northwest part of Westwood, a pocket of modest Contemporary style homes was built by one small-scale developer.

¹¹ McAlester, A Field Guide to American Houses.

In some parts of Denver, large post-war developments were planned and built out by one or two developers. This was not the case in Westwood. Small developers built out, at most, one or two blocks of homes.

In 1954 Westwood Homes, a 192-unit public housing complex, was built in the southwest part of the Westwood neighborhood. This was one of several Denver Housing Authority (DHA) public housing complexes built, totaling 2500 dwelling units, by DHA in the postwar period to help alleviate the housing shortage.

Westwood Homes, a public housing complex owned by the Denver Housing Authority, was built in 1954 to help alleviate the housing shortage after World War II.

An Influx of Schools for Westwood

To accommodate Westwood's booming population, a number of new schools were constructed in the post-war period. New public schools included Kepner Junior High (1953), Knapp Elementary School (1956), and Munroe Elementary School (1963). Because it was already over capacity by the time it was built, Kepner Junior High School opened with 1500 students attending classes in split sessions.¹² Redeemer Lutheran Church opened their own elementary school in 1963.

¹² Goodstein, The Denver School Book.

St. Anthony of Padua Catholic Church and School

Amidst the explosive population growth in Westwood, the Denver Catholic Archdiocese recognized a need for a presence in the neighborhood. In 1946, they established the St. Anthony of Padua Parish, purchasing twenty-four building lots with the intention of later building a church.¹³ Before the church was completed, masses were held in the Westwood Skating Rink and confessions were heard in a building housing Westwood Cleaners.¹⁴

The new church was dedicated in 1948. St. Anthony of Padua School was added in 1954 with three classrooms and plans to add a classroom every year until it could accommodate all Catholic grade-school children in Westwood.¹⁵ As Westwood's population continued to boom, the St. Anthony's church and school were modified to meet growing needs. The existing church was converted to a hall and a new church building constructed. Seven classrooms were added to the existing school.¹⁶ The new church was dedicated in 1961, and a new convent building was constructed across the street from the existing church and school in 1964.

Commercial Development in the Post-War Years

During and after World War II, Morrison Road became the main commercial district for Westwood, as well as for neighboring Barnum and Valverde. Like much of the Westwood neighborhood, Morrison Road development “just happened” without the aid of formal planning. This resulted in a wide array of building types and business uses on each block.

Without formal city planning, a variety of building forms and business uses developed along Morrison Road. Discover Denver photographs.

One of the most well-known businesses along Morrison Road was Warren St. Thomas’ Tropics nightclub at 4842 Morrison Road. Advertisements promoted the club’s restaurant and “exclusive entertainment from Big Town Circuits.” Later, the club featured exotic dancers. The Tropics closed in 1969.

Other, more wholesome, businesses were founded during the postwar era to cater to Westwood's booming population. The Roller-O-Rink, a roller-skating rink, was built in 1947 at 4201 W. Kentucky Avenue during a resurgence in the popularity of the activity. In addition to the barrel-roofed skating rink, the owners constructed several attached apartments at the rear of the building. During Discover Denver's conversations with Westwood residents, the skating rink was the most frequently mentioned building in the neighborhood.

W. Alameda Avenue and S. Federal Boulevard developed as major commercial corridors during this time. W. Alameda was once lined with businesses, such as motels and roadhouses, catering to automobile tourists. Many businesses had flashy signs to attract the attention of potential customers. The former Alameda Motel is the sole survivor of the many motels that once lined W. Alameda. The White Horse Bar, originally a popular neighborhood eatery, still stands near S. Sheridan Boulevard as another reminder of this era.

The Alameda Motel, now known as the Alameda Court Apartments, once welcomed travelers.

S. Federal Boulevard was lined mostly with shopettes and restaurants. The Crown-A Drive Inn, built in 1955 and a neighborhood favorite, became the Taco House in the early 1960s.

A Diverse Westwood (1970s – present)

Today, Westwood is one of the most diverse neighborhoods in Denver, and also one of the most resource-challenged. Many organizations have been formed in Westwood's recent history to support the unique needs of neighborhood communities and residents.

Diverse Demographics

Westwood demographics were diverse before many other part of Denver, due in large part to the neighborhood's history as an unincorporated area which allowed for immigrant groups and non-Anglos to live in an area free from restrictive covenants. In the years between 1950 and 1974, the Latino population of Westwood doubled from 18% to over 42%.¹⁷ By 2016, that percentage had risen to 81% of Westwood's residents, with the Latino population made up of a mix of new immigrants and those whose families had been in the neighborhood for generations.¹⁸

In the 1970s and 1980s under the leadership of Father Patrick V. Sullivan, St. Anthony of Padua Catholic Church became a "social justice parish," advocating for the neighborhood which included many low-income Latinos. The church opened a food bank and started a Latino studies and health program. The church also hosted political activists and meetings. The church became an important hub for Latinos, at one point offering seven masses in Spanish each week. After a more conservative pastor was appointed to the parish in the 1990s, St. Anthony stopped offering many of its programs and was no longer seen as a social justice parish.¹⁹ The church continues to be an important fixture in the Westwood neighborhood.

Morrison Road, while still the commercial heart of Westwood, evolved into the center of activity for Latino-owned businesses and organizations. Many buildings feature murals with Mexican or Latino themes. Former auto repair facilities have been converted into restaurants and homes for social service organizations, including Re:Vision, founded in 2007 to launch an urban farm at Kepner Middle School and backyard gardens in the neighborhood. The organization has expanded its reach since its founding, launching a community-educational kitchen and, among other efforts, establishing a food cooperative.²⁰

The Denver Indian Center, today an urban cultural gathering center for the American Indian/Alaska Native community of the Denver Metro area, was founded in the 1960s and incorporated in 1983 to provide support services to members of the Colorado American Indian community.²¹ In 1986 they moved to the shuttered former Belmont Elementary School building at 4407 Morrison Road.

While most of Westwood's residents are Latino, other ethnic groups have made the neighborhood their home. Following the fall of Saigon at the end of the Vietnam War, a number of Vietnamese immigrants made their way to Denver. Many landed in Westwood because of its affordability. Businesses, such as the Far East Center at W. Alameda Avenue and S. Federal Boulevard, were established to meet the needs of these newcomers. What has become known as the Little Saigon Business District has grown up along S. Federal Boulevard along the eastern edge of Westwood, growing south from the Far East Center. Originally established as a shopping center with businesses focused on goods and services tailored to the members of the East Asian community, the Far East Center has evolved into a cultural center for events and festivals welcoming all Denver residents.

The Far East Center serves as the northern gateway to the Little Saigon Business District.

The Southwest Improvement Council (SWIC) was founded in 1987 by Jan Belle and Father Joe Sullivan of St. Anthony of Padua church. The group recruited neighborhood volunteers to provide supportive services to members of the community, including shoveling snow, picking up garbage, and helping the elderly with daily needs. The organization took over the former Westwood Community Center at 1000 S. Lowell Boulevard in 1993. In 1995, SWIC formed the Southwest Neighborhood Housing Corporation, and built affordable housing in the neighborhood.²² Today, the organization runs programming for neighborhood seniors and operates a food pantry.

6. RESULTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Summary

A total of 3,479 parcels were surveyed in the Westwood survey area. Vacant parcels and buildings less than thirty years of age were surveyed at the Foundation level, while more information was gathered on those buildings that were over thirty years of age. Forty-one individual buildings were surveyed at the Enhanced level and were evaluated for historical, architectural, or cultural significance. Eight areas were identified as having a concentration of buildings with architectural, cultural, or historical significance.

Survey Levels

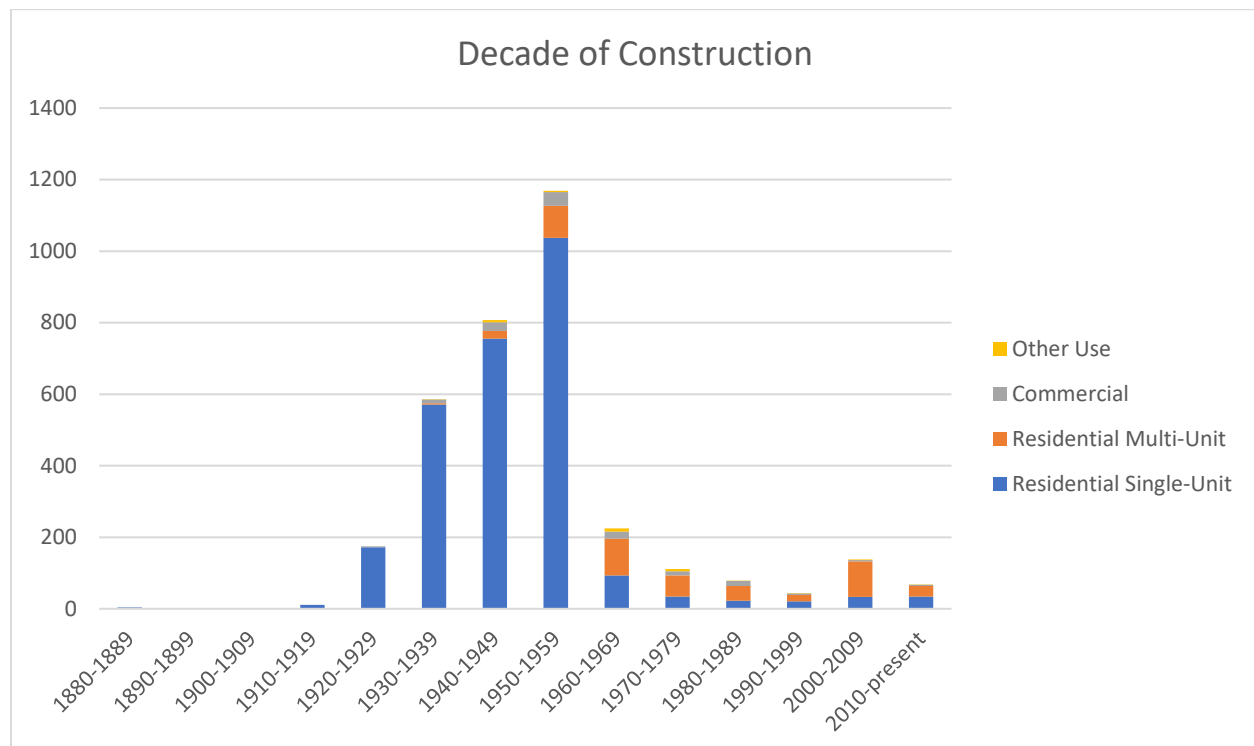

Parcels surveyed at the Foundation level are those containing buildings less than thirty years of age or no buildings at all. Buildings surveyed at the Descriptive survey level were over thirty years of age but had major alterations. Those surveyed at the Evaluation level were over thirty years of age and were unaltered or had alterations that were considered minor or moderate. The majority of properties surveyed in the Westwood survey area were documented at the Evaluation level. Historical research was performed for buildings surveyed at the Enhanced level, and these properties were evaluated for architectural, historical, and cultural significance.

Survey Level	Description	Count

Descriptive	Over 30 years old with major alterations	33
Evaluation	Over 30 years old with good integrity	3104

Years of Construction

Most buildings constructed in Westwood (n=2737, or 80%) were built between 1920 and 1959, with single-unit homes making up the majority (n=2535, or 92.6%) of this number. Most multi-unit buildings were built later than single-unit homes.

Building Forms and Styles

For purposes of this report and the Discover Denver project more generally, a distinction is made between building forms and architectural styles. Building forms are generally identified by the organization of a building's plan and massing. For example, the Foursquare building form is so-called because it is organized, in plan, into four zones of similar size in a square configuration. On the other hand, architectural styles are identified by design features applied to the building. Like clothing, architectural styles come and go according to what is in vogue at any period in time. The Queen Anne architectural style, characterized by over-the-top detailing such as textured shingles, patterned masonry and spindle-work, was "in style" between the late-1880s and late-1890s. After the turn of the century, few Queen Anne homes were constructed as homeowners opted for styles, such as Edwardian, with more classical elements.

It should be noted that the concepts of style and form are sometimes used interchangeably. For instance, in their A Field Guide to American Houses, Virginia and Lee McAlester note that the term "bungalow" was used in the early 1900s to describe small homes constructed in the Craftsman style and that it was only after 1920 that the bungalow was understood as a type to which other styles could be applied.²³

Likewise, some buildings may have a building form but no clear architectural style. Such buildings are documented by Discover Denver with the appropriate form and an architectural style of "No Clear Architectural Style."

Architectural Styles

In the Westwood survey area, the Discover Denver team observed three architectural styles, with most resources marked by surveyors as having no clear architectural style, meaning that few elements existed that could be tied to a recognizable architectural style. The following tables present the most commonly observed architectural styles in the survey area.

Properties Evaluated for Significance

Of the properties documented during field survey (no designated properties were recorded), 4.2% (N=133) were documented as having no alterations visible from the public right of way. Additionally, 91.2% (N=2899) were documented as having minor or moderate alterations (e.g., window replacement or subordinate rear additions) indicating that, while they may be too altered to be individually architecturally significant, they carry sufficient historic integrity to easily convey their history to passers-by and still have the ability to contribute to the historic landscape of the survey area.

Of the total buildings recorded in the survey area, 41 buildings were selected for Enhanced survey. In most cases buildings were selected because field observations supported the possibility that they might be architecturally significant. In a few cases, property owners or community members informed surveyors in the field that the building had aspects to its history that might indicate historical or cultural significance. The following table lists the buildings evaluated at the Enhanced level, along with their determinations of eligibility at the local, national, and state levels.

This list should not by any means be considered a complete list of potentially significant properties in the survey area; more data than was available from right-of-way survey would be required to make that determination. Any building in the neighborhood for which sufficient historic physical integrity and historic, cultural, or geographical importance can be shown should be considered to be potentially significant.

Areas of Significance

For the purposes of the Discover Denver project, an “Area of Significance” is defined as an area where most buildings retain their historic physical integrity and the ability to convey a shared history. Though much of the neighborhood’s ability to convey its history has been impacted due to changes to buildings, eight areas in the Westwood survey were identified as areas of significance.

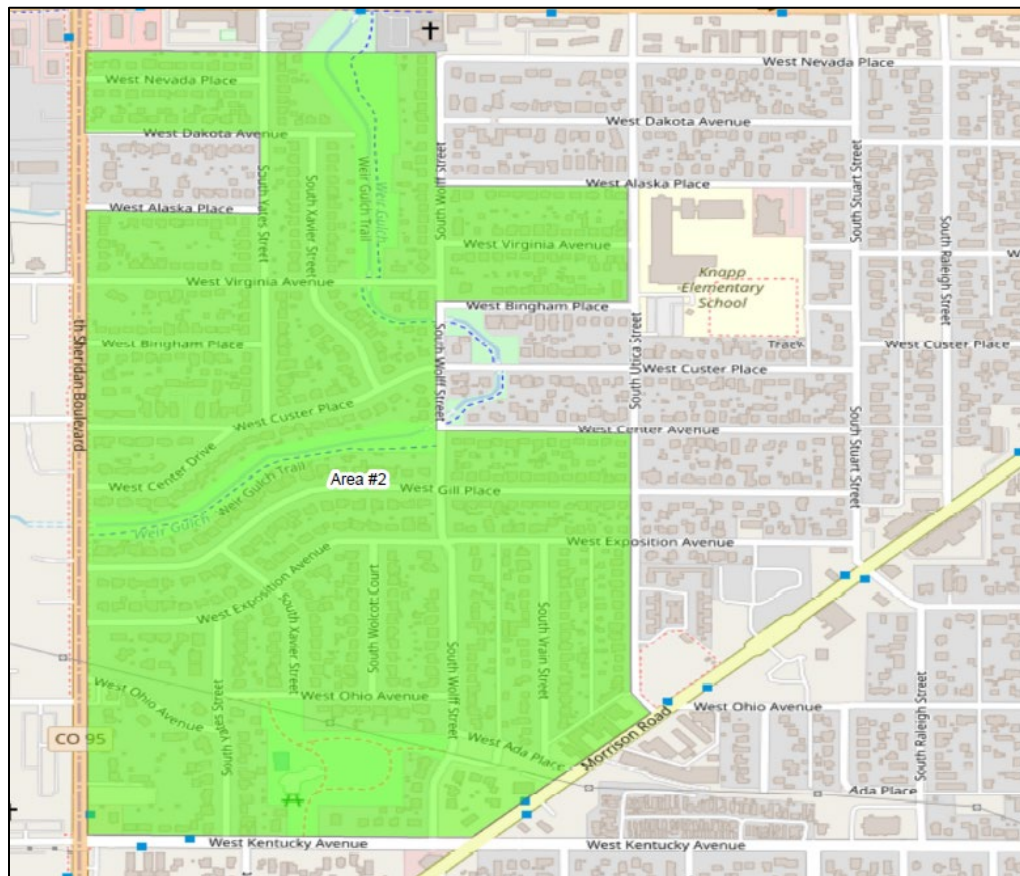

Area of Significance #1 – Contemporary Design

Area #1 is a single block that showcases Contemporary style dwellings in the Westwood neighborhood. Most of the residences in Westwood were Minimal Traditional and Transitional Ranch-form homes built in the period during World War II and the immediate post-war era. The Contemporary style buildings in Area of Significance #1 showcase the transition from these simple forms to the Contemporary style in the mid-to-late 1950s.

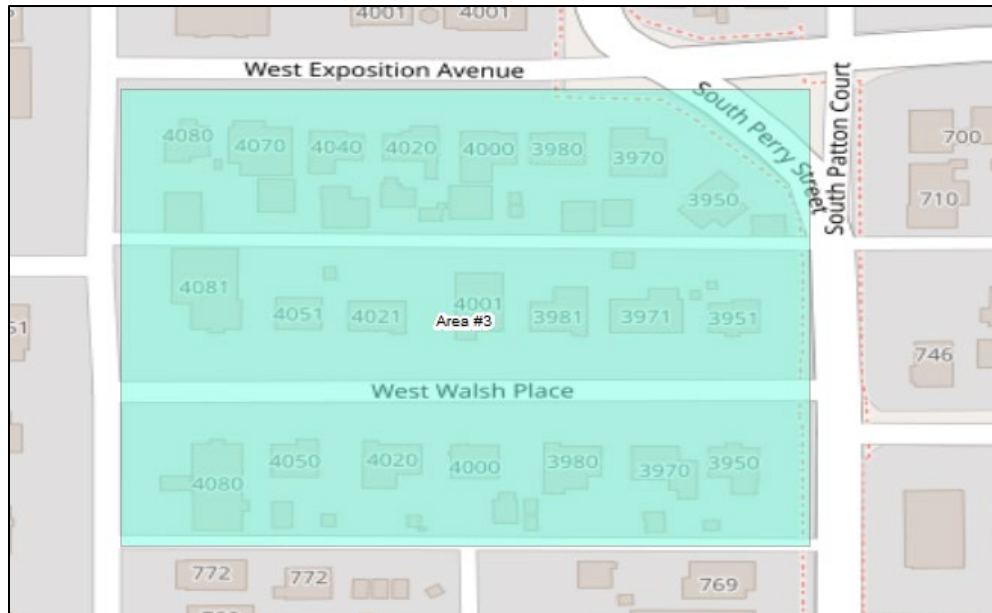

Area of Significance #2 – Post-War Housing Boom

Area #2, located in the northwest portion of Westwood, features a concentration of Minimal Traditional and Transitional Ranch dwellings built in the late-1940s to mid-1950s. This area illustrates the change in Post-War era subdivision planning from a traditional city grid to irregular and meandering streets.

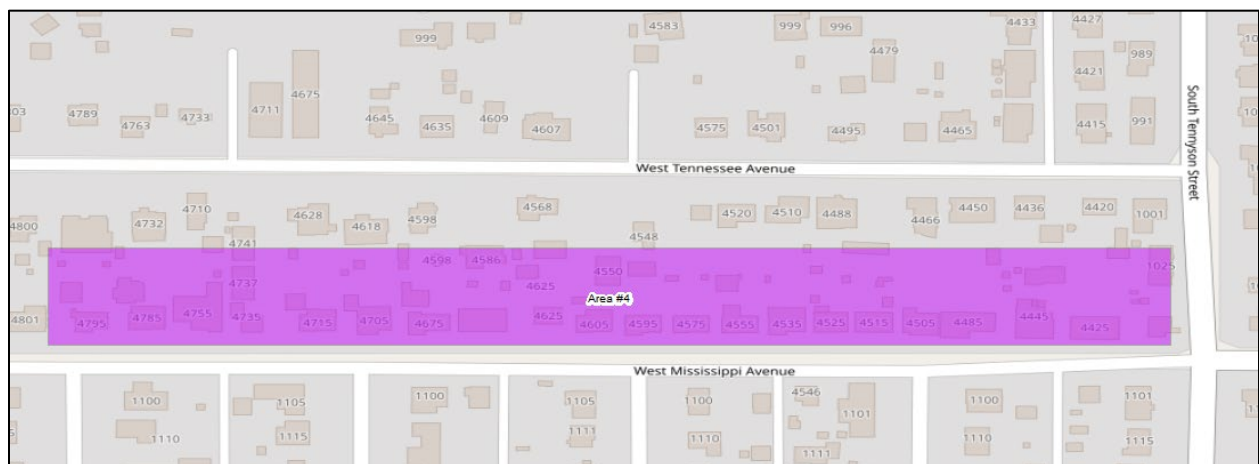

Area of Significance #3 – Rowan-Jacobs Subdivision

Area #3 encompasses Block 1 and 2 of the Rowan-Jacob's Subdivision. The homes on these blocks are excellent examples of the variety of Minimal Traditional houses constructed in the post-war era.

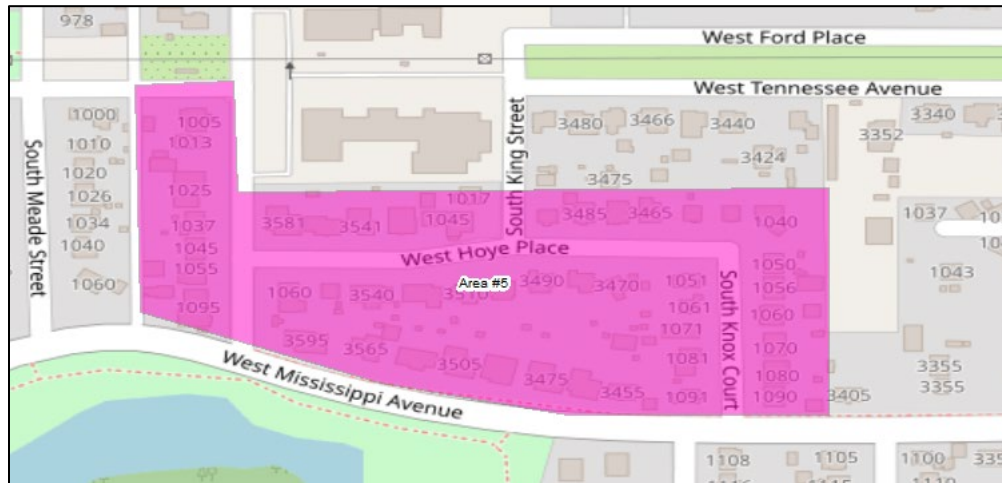

Area of Significance #4 – Transitional Ranch Homes

Area #4 is a concentration of Transitional Ranch dwellings along W. Mississippi Avenue. Built in the 1950s, the homes highlight the transitional period between the end of the boxy Minimal Traditional homes of the 1940s to the larger Ranch-type dwellings of the 1960s.

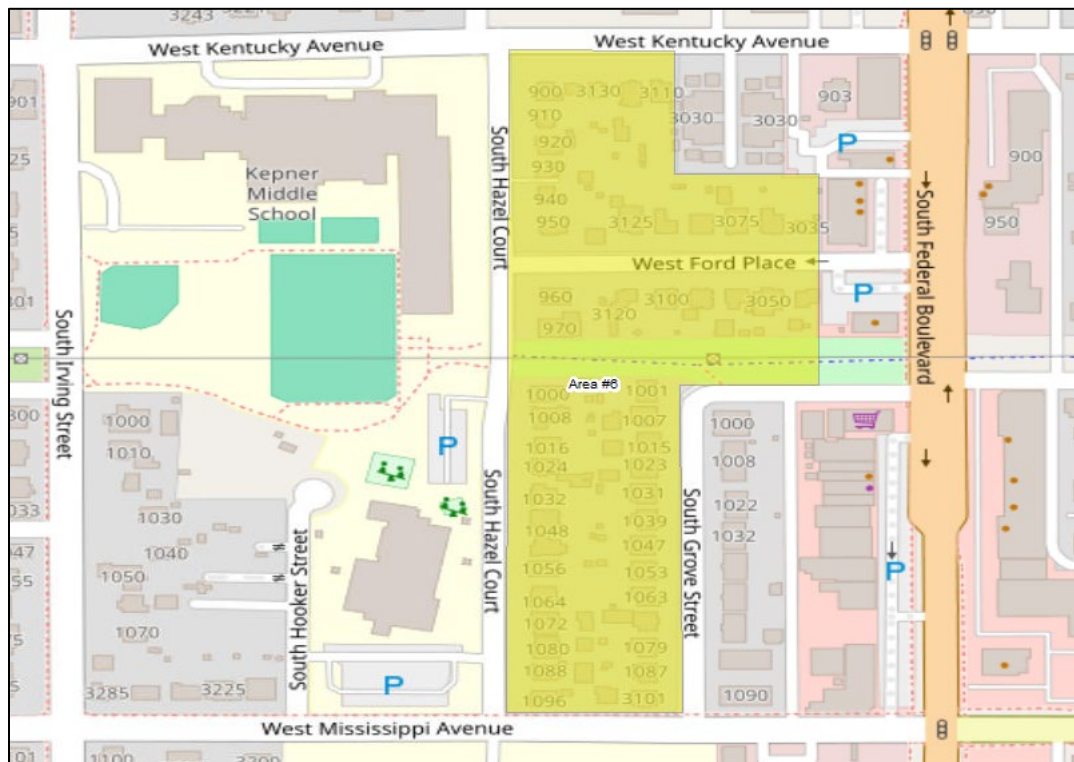

Area of Significance #5 –Ranch Dwellings

Area #5 encompasses an area of Ranch dwellings with good integrity from the 1950s to the 1960s.

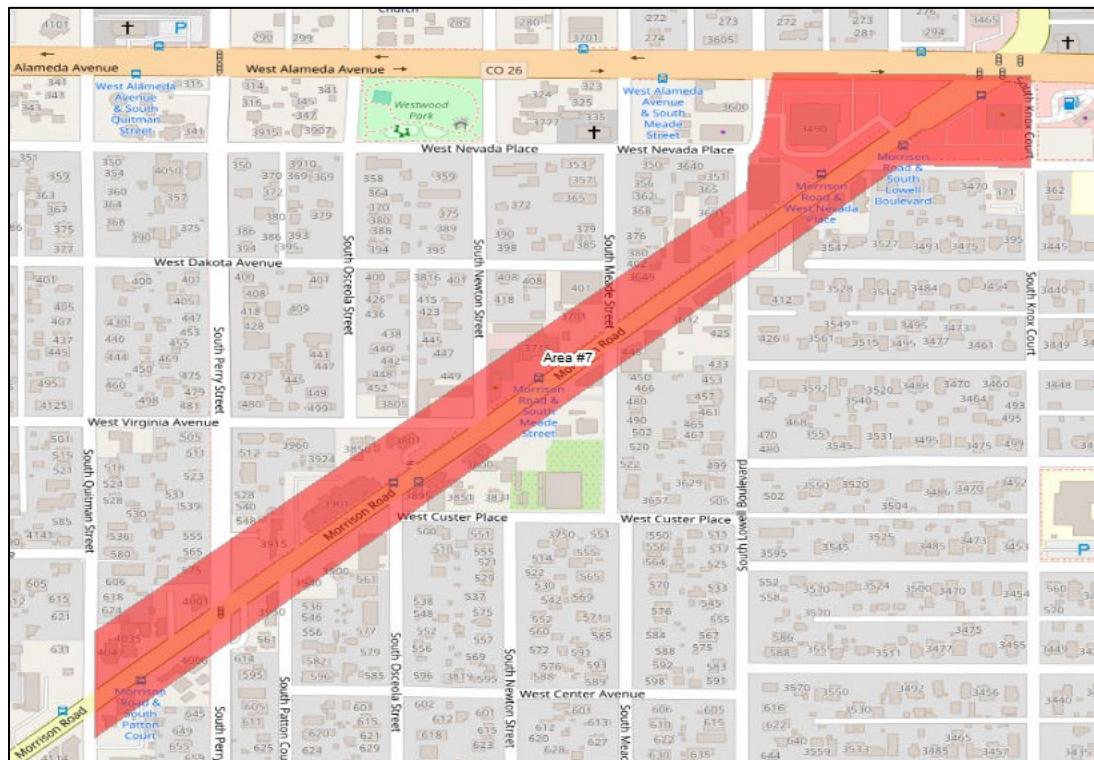

Area of Significance #6 –Minimal Traditional Homes

This area features a concentration of small homes typical of the Minimal Traditional dwellings of the 1940s.

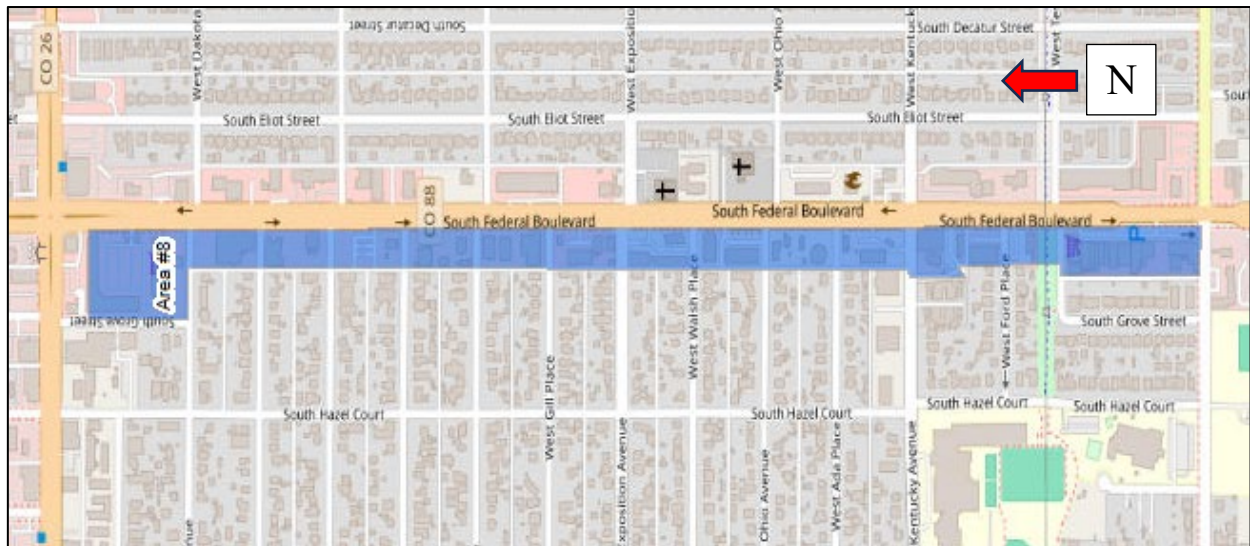

Area of Significance #7 –Morrison Road

Area #7 includes a concentration of buildings along Morrison Road, from W. Alameda Avenue at the north end to S. Quitman Street at the south. This stretch of road has become a cultural center for the Westwood neighborhood, with a variety of Latino-owned businesses, including retail shops, bakeries, and art galleries. Numerous murals, sculptures and art installations can be found in this area.

Area of Significance #8 – Little Saigon District

Area #8 is located along the west side of Federal Boulevard, stretching from W. Alameda Avenue on the north to W. Mississippi Avenue on the south. Known informally as the Little Saigon Business District, the area holds a concentration of East Asian businesses, including restaurants, bakeries, retail stores, and service businesses such as hair and nail salons. The scope of Discover Denver's work along S. Federal Boulevard included only buildings along the west side of the street between W. Alameda and W. Mississippi. It is possible that future survey and research would suggest that this area of significance be expanded to both sides of S. Federal, and to areas south or north of W. Alameda Avenue.

Conclusion

As Denver rapidly evolves, neighborhoods that are able to convey the story of how they developed are rare. Westwood's story is incredibly unique. Buildings remain to tell the story of the early agricultural community of Garden Home, of early tourists traveling to the Denver Mountain Parks, of Denver's important place in the World War II defense industry, and of the challenges faced by returning veterans in finding affordable housing. In its more recent history, Westwood tells the story of vibrant immigrant communities making a place for themselves, and making their mark on that place.

Westwood's vibrant mix of cultures is perhaps its greatest asset. In a two-minute walk, one can feel the beat of the city's Latino culture along Morrison Road, and then be in the middle of the Little Saigon Business District. The hope is that through the work of Discover Denver, residents and visitors to Westwood alike will better understand the history of the neighborhood, and value the place it holds in the development of the city.

8. SURVEY LOG

Evaluations made as a part of this survey project are intended to assist city staff, property owners, and other interested parties with understanding a property's potential significance. These evaluations may be revised in the future should additional information be discovered, or if the property no longer retains its historic physical integrity.

A determination of significance or eligibility does not formally designate a resource as a historic landmark or put any restrictions on it. Designation would require a significant level of community support and the successful completion of a rigorous public process.

Survey Log Key:

Local Level Evaluation Codes

Codes related to evaluation of each building's significance at the local level are defined as follows:

Evaluation Code	Description	Definition
Local Level – Individual Evaluation Codes
E	Eligible	- At the time of survey, the building retained sufficient historic physical integrity to convey its history, and - Based on historical research, the building met the City and County of Denver's criteria for local designation in place at the time of evaluation
NE	Not Eligible	- At the time of survey, the building did not retain sufficient historic physical integrity to convey its history, or - Based on historical research, the building did not meet the City and County of Denver's criteria for local designation in place at the time of evaluation
ND	Needs Data	At the time of survey, more information was needed in order to evaluate the significance of the building. One of the following conditions was in place: Condition 1: - The building retained historic physical integrity, but sufficient information was lacking to evaluate it for historical or cultural significance. Condition 2: - Questions remained about the building's history or cultural significance, or about its historic physical integrity.
L30	Less than 30 Years Old	The building was less than 30 years old at the time of survey and was not evaluated for significance.

Evaluation Code	Description	Definition
Local Level – Area of Significance Codes
C	Contributing	The building would contribute to an area of significance.
NC	Non-Contributing	The building would not contribute to an area of significance, often due to major alterations.
